ORGANIC COTTON STANDARDS

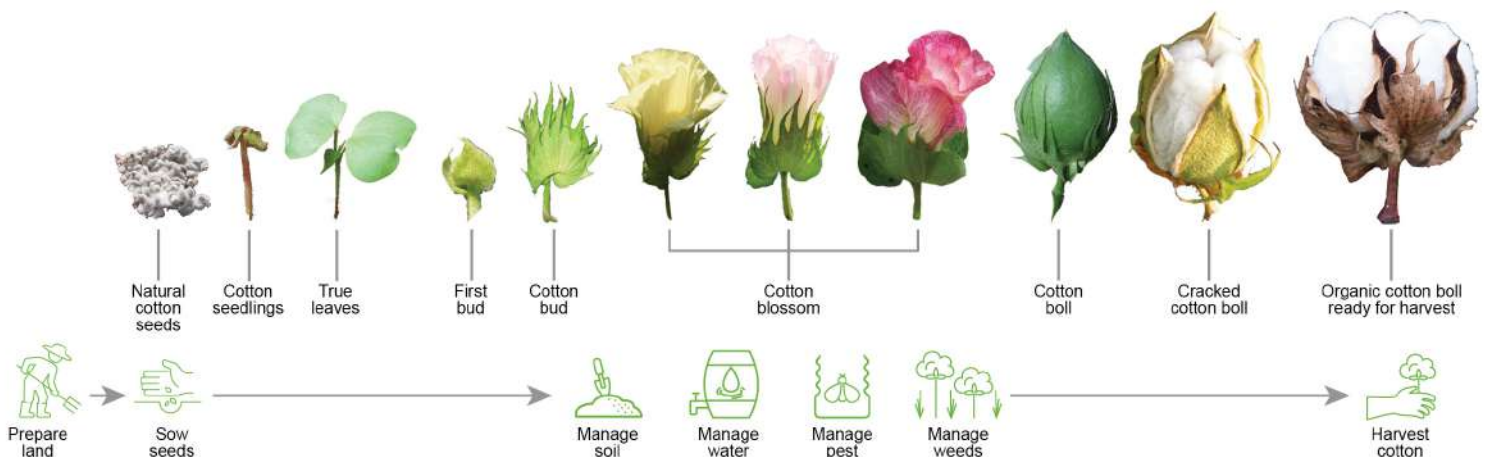

Organic cotton certification is carried out at two levels:

1. Produced according to the IFOAM Principles of Organic Agriculture and certified to the IFOAM Family of standards at the farm level, and
2. Certified to either the Organic Content Standard (OCS) or the Global Organic Textile Standard (GOTS) from fiber to product. OCS provides third party assurance that the organic content in your clothes can be traced back to source, while GOTS traces the organic content in your clothes and ensures that it is processed socially and sustainably.

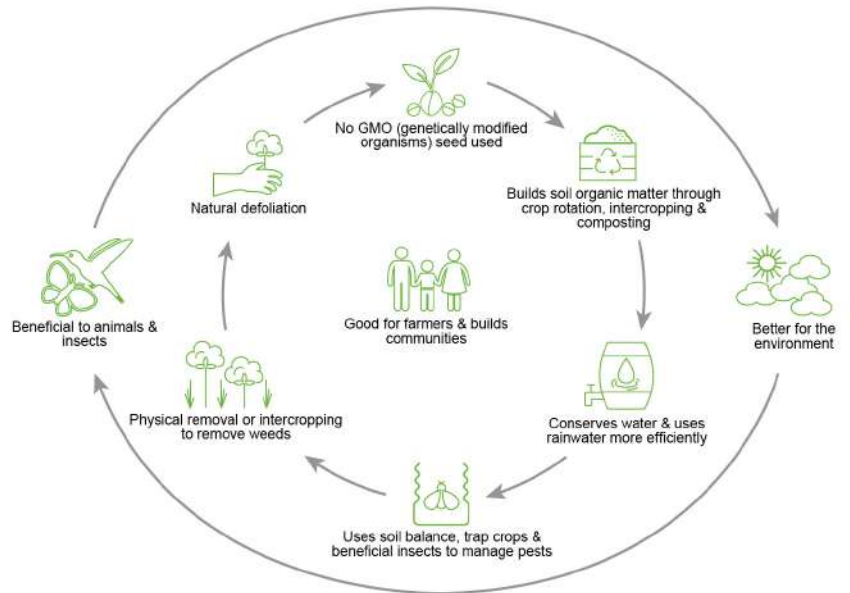

HOW IS ORGANIC COTTON GROWN?

The journey of organic cotton starts with securing untreated, natural (non-GMO) seeds. These seeds are often hard to come by and this can be a real issue for farmers. Once seed is secured, the land needs to be prepared and the seed sown. It takes approximately 60 to 70 days from planting until the first flower appears, and bolls appear 50 to 70 days after bloom. The growth cycle of the cotton plant lasts for approximately 5-6 months. During this time, soil fertility, water, pests and weeds need to be managed. 45 days after bolls appear, the cotton boll will begin to naturally split open along the bolls' segments. Once the cotton boll is fully dried and fluffed, it is ready for harvesting.

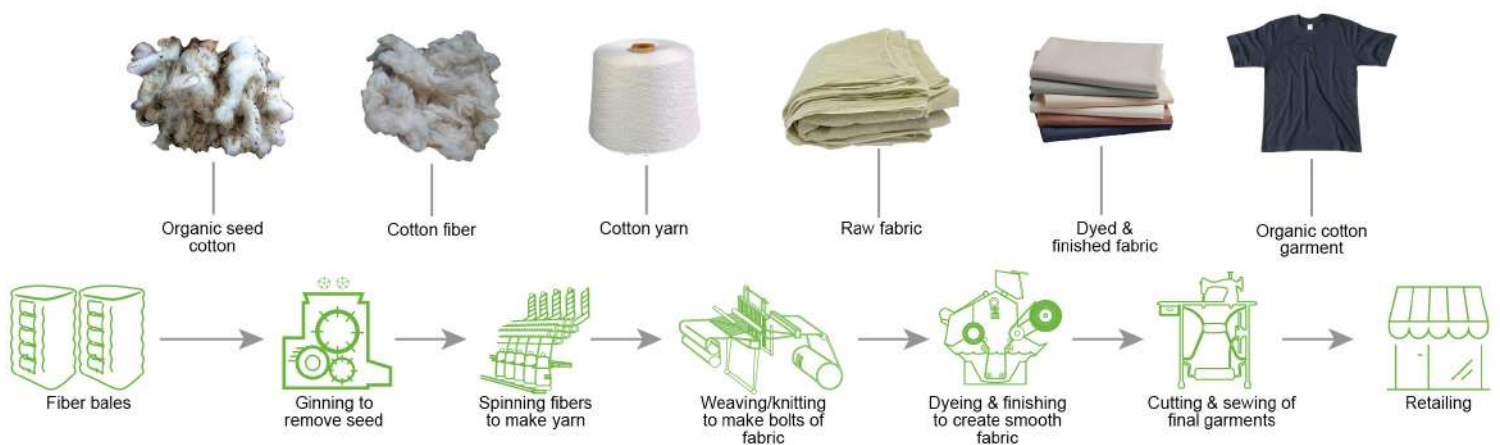

WHAT IS ORGANIC COTTON?

Organic cotton is cotton that is produced, and certified, according to organic agricultural standards. Its production sustains the health of soils, ecosystems and people by using natural processes rather than artificial inputs. Importantly, organic cotton farming does not allow the use of toxic chemicals or GMOs (genetically modified organisms). Instead, it combines tradition, innovation, and science to benefit the shared environment and promote a good quality of life for all involved.

ORGANIC COTTON SUPPLY CHAIN

The general process of transforming seed cotton from the farm into the final garment includes ginning, spinning, weaving/knitting, dyeing, finishing, cutting and sewing. Organic certification ensures that the cotton passing through each stage of the manufacturing process is tracked.
